

Biographies

Prof. Rachel Sharaby

Prof. Sharaby is head of the Sociology and Anthropology Department and the Interdisciplinary Social Sciences Department at Ashkelon Academic College. She also serves as associate editor of the bilingual journal Hagira, together with editor-in-chief Prof. Sergio Della Pergola. Her research topics include migration, tradition and modernity, gender, intercultural encounters and syncretism. She has recently published the following books:

- Renewal of Celebrating the Saharana Tradition in Israel. Riesling, 2016 [Hebrew].
- Dynamics of Gender Borders—Women in Israel's Cooperative Settlements (with Prof. Fogiel-Bijaoui, Silvia). Walter de Gruyter, Berlin/Boston & Hebrew University Magnes Press. 2017.

rsharaby@gmail.com

Dr. Daniella Arieli

Dr. Arieli is a senior lecturer in the Department of Nursing and the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at Yezreel Valley College. In her research she integrates social anthropology approaches with the action research approach. She examines the reciprocal relations between individuals, groups and cultures from various spheres of life, and primarily from academia and the therapeutic encounter.

daniellaa@yvc.ac.il

Yael Skorkowich M.A.

Ms. Skorkowich is a lecturer in the Departments of Nursing, Sociology and Anthropology, and Psychology at Yezreel Valley College. She holds a master's degree in social psychology from Tel-Aviv University and is pursuing doctoral studies in the Department of Leadership and Policy in Education at the University of Haifa. Her research focuses on gender, migration and intercultural encounters.

yaelsk@yvc.ac.il

Prof. Miriam Hirschfeld

Prof. Hirschfeld is an emeritus professor of nursing. She served in the World Health Organization (WHO) as Chief Scientist for Nursing and subsequently as Director of Human Resources for Health. In this capacity she launched the WHO initiative on long-term care. She established the academic Department of Nursing at Yezreel Valley College and served as the department's first head.

Mj.hirschfeld@gmail.com

Dr. Wovit Worku-Mangisto

Dr. Worku-Mangisto completed her undergraduate studies at Bar-Ilan University and her doctorate at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. She lectures in the Department of Informal Education at David Yellin College of Education. Her main teaching and research areas include youth at risk, identity and migration. She also serves as supervisor for children and youth at risk in the Ministry of Education. Dr. Worku-Mangisto is currently collaborating in a comparative research study on overt and covert school dropouts among immigrant children and members of minority groups.

wovite@walla.com

Prof. Gabriel Horenczyk

Prof. Horenczyk is a professor in the Seymour Fox School of Education and the Melton Centre for Jewish Education at The Hebrew University of Jerusalem. His main fields of teaching and research include psychological aspects of ethnic, cultural and Jewish identity; identity and adaptation among minorities and immigrants; immigrants in the schools; and identity shifts. Prof. Horenczyk headed the Israeli ICSEY team (International Comparative Study of Ethnocultural Youth) and is currently collaborating in a comparative research study on overt and covert school dropouts among immigrant children and members of minority groups.

gabriel.horenczyk@mail.huji.ac.il

Orly Alshech M.A.

Orly Alshech is a speech therapist and a doctoral student in the Department of Education at Bar-Ilan University. She holds a bachelor's degree in communication disorders and special education from Sloviansk Pedagogical University in Ukraine and a master's degree in special education from Bar-Ilan University. She serves as district instructor in the field of communication and learning technologies for pupils with autism and complex disorders. Her research focuses on learning and communication technologies among pupils with autism spectrum and mental disorders and on multi-professional teamwork.

Orly Alshech believes in the importance of the connection between academia and the field. Based on her belief that this connection needs to be enhanced, she lectures at in-service training sessions for educational staff working in the field of special education.

liorsow@gmail.com

Dr. Shlomit Landman

Dr. Landman is a linguist who investigates Israeli and Jewish onomastics from a sociolinguistic perspective. She teaches various topics related to the study of Hebrew language and academic writing at Achva Academic College and at Levinsky College of Education.

shlomitlandman@gmail.com

Dr. Riva Ziv

Dr. Riva Ziv lectures in the Multidisciplinary Studies Department at Ashkelon Academic College and the Department of Health Sciences at Tel-Aviv University. She completed her PhD in the Department of Sociology at Bar-Ilan University on the topic of "second career for military women." Her research and teaching focus on labor migrants, gender, family role division and single-gender families.

rivaz@ariel.ac.il

Dr. Efraim Davidi

Dr. Davidi is a lecturer and researcher in the Department of Social Work at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev. He also teaches Latin American history at Tel-Aviv University and is a research fellow at Tel-Aviv University's Sverdlin Institute for Latin American History and Culture. Dr. Davidi has published five books, among them Labor, Capital and Government—A Decade in the History of the Workers Movement in Argentina (1966-1976) (Riesling, 2008) [Hebrew], as well as dozens of articles in journals in Hebrew, English, Spanish, French, Portuguese and Arabic.

davidief@netvision.net.il